SOG Tech Bowie Fixed Blade Knife

Is there a knife as iconic as the Bowie knife? With a clipped edge, fixed blade, and hand guard, the Bowie knife is a classic that's been around for centuries now — and it's the preferred knife of many. First created in the 1800s and named after notorious knife-dueling enthusiast James Bowie, this uniquely shaped knife has captured attention since the very first one was made. Ironically, though a Bowie knife is instantly recognizable today, this iconic blade was actually made in a number of different ways back in the 19th century.

Today, the Bowie knife's legacy lives on. Now used most commonly as a survival tool or weapon for hunting, camping, and other outdoor scenarios, the Bowie knife is especially handy for skinning, butchering, and even self-defense. With endless variations of Bowie knives available, you have so many different designs, patterns, and sizes to choose from and carry.

If you're looking for a modern Bowie knife that offers impressive materials, standout quality, and a tech-savvy design, the SOG Tech Bowie Fixed Blade Knife is just the right one for you. A newer SOG model that utilizes technology and high-quality materials in its design, this knife does cost quite a lot, but it's an investment that can pay off for those who want a top-tier product. The blade measures 6.4 inches and is made from stainless steel that's made sleek with a satin finish. A layer of SOG's unique Hardcased Titanium Nitride (TiNi) matte black coating makes the blade extremely hard, extra durable, and resistant to scratching and peeling. The entire knife is made sturdy and well-connected thanks to its anchors, which keep the Kraton rubber handle right in place. The grip of the knife's handle is covered in a raised diamond pattern to prevent slips or accidents. Lastly, the Kydex sheath offers just the right balance of sleek and sturdy protection to keep your blade in its best shape. FYI: Cabela's Current Price $139.99
